

Palladium – Platinum's Little Sister

The term palladium might sound a little sober at first, but it is the name of a metal which is related to platinum and which, therefore, has a high value.

What can make palladium a key player when it comes to choosing your wedding rings? Simple: this material distinguishes itself through the high color and shape resistance and looks very similar to platinum. Short: palladium is, in terms of wedding rings, a material which can make a lot of wishes come true – maybe even exactly the ones you have in mind!

Palladium + White Gold

If white gold is a possible material for your wedding rings, you rely on precious jewelry and remain faithful to your preference of gold without losing your penchant for a coloration of your jewelry. One could say you kill two birds with one stone.

All Time Favorite Potential

Enchanting Memories – Forever

Palladium + Yellow Gold

Today, the tone of yellow gold is not considered as “over the top” anymore. Rather quite the opposite, in this case it is seen as very genuine. Nowadays, yellow gold is hip again and totally in line with the newest trends!

Palladium + Apricot-colored Gold

Do you love to browse through interior-blogs, or look at fashionable pictures in social networks, and are always looking for new trends in local shops? Then you might have already noticed that copper and similar colors are very trendy right now. An Apricot-colored gold is entirely located in this range.

All Bayer wedding rings are 100% made in Germany and are manufactured at our location in Pforzheim.

Palladium + Red Gold

Swagger-Model par excellence

In order to celebrate your happiness to the fullest on the most important and beautiful day of your life, every detail should be perfect. In doing so, your rings can be as individual as you are. Far away from conventions – everything is possible! With the combination of red gold and palladium, you will make a statement for sure!

Palladium + Red Gold

For all Yolos – The Hippest Models